Questions and Answers

about Asbestos and EPA's Investigation

Q: Am I missing important information about the asbestos cleanup?

A: We hope not! To make sure Libby and Troy residents get information about the cleanup, the decision-making process and how they can participate, EPA will do several new things.

Please look for a short blue postcard survey in the mail from EPA in the next two weeks. You can help EPA and DEQ communicate better by telling us how YOU think we're doing right now and sharing your ideas about how we can improve. We will do a short follow-up survey at the end of the year to measure whether you think we've gotten you the information you wanted.

EPA will start a monthly column in The Western News and The Montanian newspapers which will describe the Superfund Process, EPA's current activities, and how people can get more information about or provide input into those activities and decisions.

EPA will do several radio interviews with information on EPA issues activities and opportunities for public participation.

In the summer of 2005, EPA will present a workshop on the science involved in the cleanup. Attendance will help residents better understand the technical issues that EPA must consider when making cleanup decisions.
